V.C.J., and JOHNSON, WILLIAMS and JACKSON, JJ., concur. DAVISON and BERRY, JJ., concur in separate opinions. CONCURRING OPINION BERRY, Justice: I concur in the result, but disagree with the majority's conclusion that the $15,000 life insurance policy in the name of Christopher Pratt is in fact his separate property. The majority opinion quotes heavily from Chapman v. Chapman, 8 Ariz. App. 152, 445 P.2d 441 (1968), and I agree with this view of the law. However, the majority opinion completely ignores our holding in Lorenz. In Lorenz, we affirmed the trial court's decision in the present case that the $15,000 life insurance policy in the name of Archie Lorenz, Jr. was his separate property. In addition, we affirmed the trial court's decision that the $16,000 policy in the name of Howard C. Lorenz, Jr. was also his separate property. We should not now change the law and permit an inheritance through a life insurance policy or by beneficiaries. NOTES [1] The Chapman case involved the distribution of a husband's separate property which he had accumulated while married. In the present case, the husband died during the marriage but the property accumulated prior to marriage. Thus, Chapman is not pertinent in the present case. Furthermore, in the present case, we consider whether the $15,000 death benefit from an $80,000 policy, by a husband who is survived by a wife and two children, would be considered a marital asset because it was not transferred to the wife prior

I need the user to be able to input any number of conditions. The first condition must be the entered value (number) added by the program to the entered value (number) before the conditions can continue. Here is my example code: #Program to detect whether the entered value of the user is a prime number or not print("1. Please enter a value (number). 2. That value (number) will then be added to the value the user entered before entering the conditions. 3. Use the logical OR symbol (||) to check all conditions.") number = int(input("")) print("1. Entered value (number) = ", number) conditions = False if number == 2: if number in [3, 5, 7, 11, 13]: if number == 3: if number == 5: if number == 7: if number == 11: if number == 13: print(" You entered the valid number: ", number) conditions = True else:

Id Weinhold Hello all, I am working on a project so that I can follow the discussion with the 3.2 version. For that I started to develop a 3D physical sandbox that can be simulated in Solidworks. My end goal is to create a tool that is able to work closeup on a part (or an entire structure) so that the user can affect any part in the environment and see the consequences, i.e. a virtual workplace for the experts from an industrial environment. The association with the 3D scanning is just to make a 3D model. I developed the app following the principles of Zero Sleep Graphics (ZSG) where the user remains connected to the machine but has eyes windows closed, the machine controls the brain rendering so the user can walk through the scene. I was able to access system's CPU to handle the GPU rendering. I don't think this precludes the 3D scanning part though, so if the model I make is perfect I can display a 3D model, this is ok. But a lot of work is going to be there and it could be done in a simpler way, but since I am interested in the 3D scanning as a proof of concept I can explore it later Is this possible to make such a tool using OpenSCAD and Blender? [I tried using fusion 360 but it doesn't seem to have the capability to export everything, just the finished final model -

Thulani Wotlove Oct 3 '15 at 5:15 1 This might be a case for using SGI's Creo for your needs - you can do virtual 3d modeling with the hardware acceleration and show a virtual world for the user. Blender has the option to place the model in a virtual space and view it from various angles. - Keith Collier Oct 3 '15 at 17:46 2 We can see all of the boxes in a workbench space using the "show" menu. Does this help you? - Keith Collier Oct 3 '15 at 18:18 1 I think you also need to be careful to avoid rendering artifacts, that is, you can use depth maps to detect transparency, but the virtual scene will make a rectangular reflection of the light, otherwise a given surface won't show properly. - Thulani Wotlove Oct 3 '15 at 23:19 1 Answer Awesomenauts is a brand new kind of MOBA where your team of cannon-fodder cannon-rollers goes up against enemy cannon-fodder cannon-rollers. It's fast-paced gameplay emphasizes skillful use of futuristic weapons and gadgets to pull off devastating plays that can turn the tide of battle. Awesomenauts' game modes include objective-based King of the Hill, where your team must protect your base while fighting off enemy attacks; Capture the Flag, a traditional deathmatch; and Temple, a futuristic capture the flag variant where you must capture the enemy's flag, and not get kited by them. Awesomenauts can also be played competitively in Ranked Matchmaking to climb up the global ladder, or cooperatively in Casual Matchmaking for a more social experience that feels like a MOBA. It might be a 3D space shooter, but it's more than that.

Awesomenauts is a whole new dimension in team-based combat! Players can choose a character from one of four wildly different classes: the explosive, fast-paced and mobile Pyro, the stealthy, high-powered Assassin and the experimental, nimble and powerful Engineer. Assemble your team using any combination of 3 unique "heroes" from the four classes. As you level-up each of your heroes, you can unlock new abilities for them and acquire powerful rewards. Awesomenauts offers an assortment of characters, abilities, vehicles, guns and more to customize your team with your preferred play style. Each character has an upgrade tree that lets you improve that character's weapons, abilities, and defenses. 1-2 players can take on AI-controlled opponents in Free-for-All mode. SENTRY X-58 will be available for a limited time only. Use the code: x58 to be able to buy this character. It will be expanded to the post season, and you guys and gals will get all the characters and everything for that season for free. But as previously announced, on the eve of our main season, season 4, we're also going to be doing an intensive QA run on the game, and we're going to be taking the servers offline. It'll be done at the same time as the league but for just an hour or so, and that will allow us to check everything we've done with this season, look at what people have been asking, look at your
